The Ladies of
"Our Daily Bread" & Sweeney

June 2006

"He restores my soul; He leads me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Psalm 23:3"

I spent last weekend in the hospital. Our local hospital is one of the few places that can compete with Connie's Cooking. All the way from the lab to the nurses (including Dr. Roger and Linda) are local folks who either know you or know your family. I am so glad that I did not have to travel far away and trade all this loving care for a larger and somewhat more professional setting.

Those of us who choose to live in a small community know that it is a trade off. We trade higher salaries for a lower cost of living; and a fast paced lifestyle for a Safe, Calm (& some would say boring) pace. Your neighbor may be nose, but they are the first to notice if something is out of order.

A special Blessing during my stay was the "48 Hour Marathon of Andy Griffith" on TBS. All the characters of Mayberry had a message for me as I lay confined to a hospital bed. Maybe you watched it too. Maybe you should have.

If this world is a rushing river...sweeping us along in a torrent of business and conflict; then our Lord has given us a choice to sit on the shore with Him. He frees us and bids us rest.

Next week I will plan to take time to bring some goodies from the Bake Shoppe to Theresa, Carol and all those lovely people who took care of me along the shore – when they pulled me in. I will also be reminded to watch for others who are struggling. That's what we do here in (Mayberry) Oh...I mean Barnes! See you soon!Blessings!

I just wanted to let you know of the memorable experience I had at your restaurant. Last weekend I went to see my mother who lives near Green, Kansas. I haven't been home in two years and so my mom planned a special outing for us. She chose to take me to Our Daily Bread (which I've heard good things about)!

We had reservations for lunch and we were treated so hospitably. The atmosphere and friendly service pays tribute to the charm and hominess that a small town brings. Not to mention how incredible the food was!!! It was great to spend time with my mom in a charming, Christ-centered atmosphere. I grew up near Green, KS and now live in Tulsa, OK. I know how with time, small towns can lose momentum and then all that is left are memories. I am proud of you and your town for taking what you have and blessing people beyond your boundaries; thus keeping your town and it's special qualities "alive". God bless you forever in your endeavors.

Mr. Barker shared this photo of the interior of the Barnes State Bank. The Bank is the first of many projects that will be under the care of the newly formed Barnes Preservation Society.

Our Daily Bread was proud to team up with a local youth group as they sold our products as a fundraiser, right before easter. You should have seen the Bake Shoppe as the 40 dozen cinnamon rolls and over 70 pies plus other baked goods lined the shelves ready for delivery. The youth group raised over $700 for their upcoming trip and their supporters enjoyed the generous portions that they received.

As a part of the housing grant for Barnes, certain buildings were slated for demolition. The hatchery building, which is a neighbor to the Barnes State Bank is in the process of becoming history. So many small towns have a hard time with saving what can be saved and deciding which buildings cannot be. As it is the old hatchery building is beyond repair and the grant will help pay for the asbestos removal and cleanup, so that railroad avenue as you enter Barnes, will be a welcoming site. We appreciate all the work that has been done by so many. What has happened in Barnes has truly been a work of the heart!
