March 2010

"But Mary treasured up all these things and pondered them in her heart." ...Luke 2:19

Into this broken world, March 17th, 2005 came a little bundle of red haired joy. He was an answer to prayer for his Mom & Dad and a Blessing from above for all that would take the time to know him. Kaden was such a tiny treasure. My favorite picture was Kevin feeding him, and his hand being almost as big as Kaden. My heart is broken, and I really don't mind the pain All too soon Kaden has flown to Heaven with a whisper of his name. I am sure that an angel took his hand, as he liked to have assuring company in unexplored territory. I am thankful that he was a part of my life, I learned so much from him. His quiet nature and simple joys touched parts of my heart that I had kept sheltered from others. I enjoyed the naps with Blankie & Lion, and then the constant vigil as we would watch out the window for "Mommys Coming". I never knew a child that loved to run so much. Maybe he sensed that he would only be here for a short time and wanted to get as much in as he could. I am praising my God and Lord for the four years and ten months that I was allowed to have Kaden in my world, but more than that I am trusting in His love in providing that place, just out of my reach, where Kaden waits with others that I have had the opportunity to love. We only have those that touch our lives for a season, and then there is eternity...and that is where the party is!...with Dancing...and Singing...and lot of lovely red balloons!

I overheard a lady in the store the other day, without her knowledge of my status as Grandma, commenting how sad it was that he was an only child. I couldn't help but think about God's Only Beloved Son. Those words...all of sudden had new meaning. Nothing is free in this world...someone pays..and to God the price was just as dear and just as painful as these tears that I cry. I want people to remember Kaden, it brings me joy to share my memories and know that he waits for me, and by the way...God better have a big yard!

Easter is just around the corner, it is the time set aside to celebrate and remember the price that Jesus paid so that we could all run in that big yard with Kaden. I am putting away my fall and winter decorations and getting out Easter Eggs. I am buying gifts for Easter baskets and purchasing colorful balloons. We will celebrate together, all of us...looking forward to being able to see each other through that curtain that seperates us...

*And Mary said:
 "My soul glorifies the Lord and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for He has been mindful of the humble state of His servant. From now on all generations will call me blessed, for the Mighty one has done great things for me- holy is His name." Luke 1:46-49*

A Basket Full of Yum!

We were recently featured in the Spring Edition of Kansas Living, a quarterly magazine published by Kansas Farm Bureau.

I had the opportunity to sit down with Angie Sutton and share our unique business, and stories of our family. The story...Fresh Daily referred to my basket as a "Basket of Yum".

It includes an assortment of our most popular fresh baked goods. Handmade bread, cinnamon rolls, almond covered sugar cookies, poppyseed dressing (a house specialty) and jumbo muffins. Thank you Angie for taking time to reach out and promote Kansas Ag related businesses. We are truly blessed to live where we do...and working together as families in the heart of America!
